Leadership is a Learning Experience

NOTES FROM THE CHAIR

Anna M. Jain IASC President

During the coming year each of us will have a need to learn to work with individuals and groups, to communicate effectively, to run a successful meeting, to evaluate endeavors, and to accept and delegate responsibilities—to become better leaders.

There are not very many “born leaders”; rather, many individuals are born with the potential to be leaders. The IASC exists to provide opportunities for young leaders to develop leadership skills. The IASC offers:

1. Constitutional Convention ( Sept. 23-24, 1978)

Students will participate in the rewriting of the IASC Constitution. They will learn the importance of a constitution, the basic structure of a constitution, and the language of a constitution.

2. Workshops

There are workshops offered throughout the year designed for: up-coming leaders ( Freshman-Sophomore workshops), advisors, discussion group leaders (Materials workshops), experienced leaders ( Advanced workshops), and for leaders who want to get a head start for the coming school year ( McKendree Summer Workshop.)

3. Conference on Student Views

The conference provides students across the state with an opportunity to debate controversial issues. The debators must research their topics ,plan an argument ( pro or con ), and then present it.

4. Published materials to help councils across the state keep in-formed.

*THE REPORTER passes on valuable ideas and information which can benefit all student council organizations. At the same time, student councils can inform other councils of their activities by writing to the editor.

*Many councils have put together publications on fund raising, student exchange, student rights, roles of officers, etc., which are available to you by contacting one of the IASC Executive Board Members.

5. The Annual IASC State Convention

Here students have an opportunity to take on new leadership positions. A student can run for a state office, can become a discussion group leader, or a member of one of several committees which are essential to the success of this convention. Over a Thousand students from around the state witness and participate in a convention similar to many national conventions held by professional organizations each year.

These are just some of the activities which IASC makes available to you and members of your student body who you identify. Because LEADERSHIP IS A LEARNING EXPERIENCE we hope that you will take advantage of these opportunities to develop needed leadership skills.

Project of the Month

The purpose of this swap column is to promote relationships between individual councils, to publicize worthwhile activities ideas that have worked, or needs of individual councils, and to strengthen the value of the IASC to member organizations. Anyone who has any ideas concerning community projects, exchanges, or something for students across the state please send information to Becky Urfer, R. R. 1, West Liberty, IL 62475

Example: CHS Goes Graphic

Champaign Central High School's Student Council is currently working on the renovation of their cafeteria. With the help of an architect they have decided to place carpet on the walls of their cafeteria in their school colors arranged in a graphic design. CHS would like to hear what other schools are trying in their cafeterias.

If a student council were to read this article they might:

1. decide that maybe a good project for their Council would be to work on the renovation of their cafeteria.

2. have already been working on renovation of their cafeteria on other rooms and like the idea of using carpet-in which case they might wish to contact CHS.

3. other councils may have already renovated their cafeteria in which case they could help this council out with other suggestions ( i.e. ways of dividing cafeteria seating space.)

Other Examples:

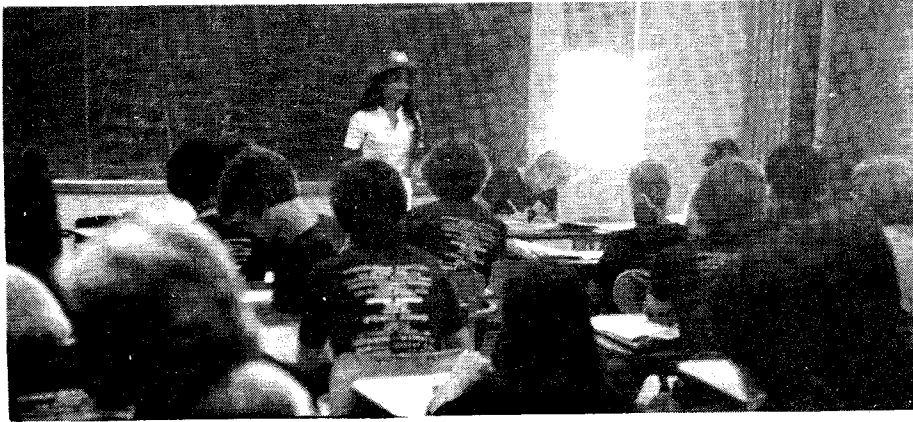

A student council may have some used piece of equipment to sell or may want to buy some (i.e. riser).

A council may wish to arrange some student exchanges with schools that are working on particular problems similar to theirs.

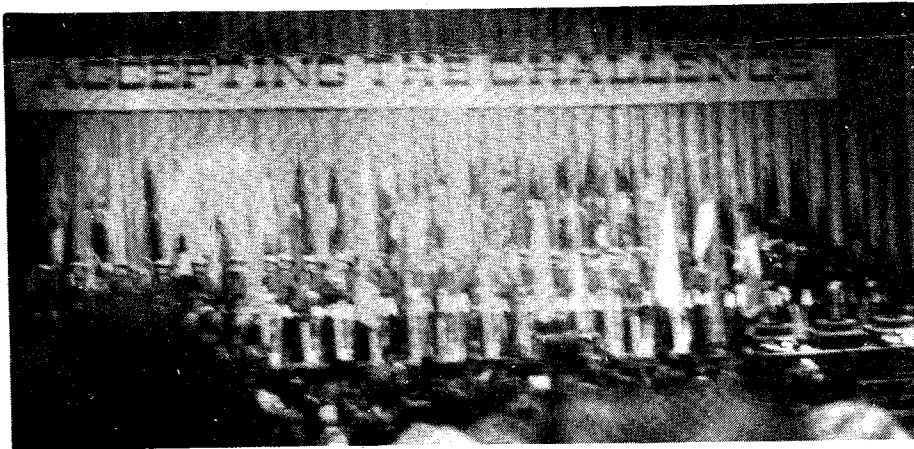

Sincerely Yours;
Becky Urfer

Become a Leader at McKendree!

Under the direction of Gary ZumMallen, current IASC Workshop Director, the twenty-seventh annual leadership workshops began July 24 at McKendree College. Three one week long sessions were offered.

Bewildered delegates arrived on Monday afternoon, not knowing what challenges and situations would arise within the next four days. Delegates first went to Lower Deneen for registration. Room assignments, keys and group folders were distributed by staff to the delegates upon registration.

After registration, and dinner, workshops began. Delegates divided into clubs which were named and given a job to do. Pictures were taken of these various clubs. The general session came next. Mr. ZumMallen welcomed everyone to the workshop. Then he introduced the Senior Counselor and the Junior Counselors (J.C.'s).

Ed Phelps, Executive Secretary of the IASC and Consultant for the workshops, spoke briefly on leadership and upcoming events of the week. Delegates were then given cards which had three songs on them, instructed to go outside, and start humming until they found everyone that was humming the same song. The delegates then sat in these groups and gave factual information about themselves. They did this for all three songs except the last one, which they were suppose to express a strong feeling.

Following the general session, the delegates broke into their clubs which they would be working with the remainder of the week. They used name games and interviews to become better acquainted with the members of the club. Then the clubs were given a problem and instructed to find a solution. The club then made a mural to show what they would do to solve the problem.

As Monday came to an end, the delegates gathered on the steps outside the Deneen. Songleader, Dana Gruber, and the J.C.'s lead the songs. Then a Senior Counselor told a story. These nightly closings seemed to bring the delegates closer to each other.

The next four days role playing and group participation were major learning experiences for the delegates. Club activities electing officers, brain storming, areas of authority, constructing a constitution, and "Prisoners Dilemma," a game which teaches a very important lesson about cooperation collaboration, and trust.

The Consultant, Ed Phelps, led all the general assemblies. These included slips, head bands, broken squares, mipps and wors, the NASA test, a mock meeting, and a leadership style questionnaire. These and other games demonstrated group dynamics, group communication, and consensus seeking exercises.

In the afternoons around 3:30, the delegates had a chance to show their athletic abilities in the intramurals. There Student Council meetings were also held at this time.

Tuesday evening the J.C.'s led swap shops, Later that evening an "Anything Goes or Jr. Olympics" was held. This brought about the club spirit. Then the delegates went on a Lion Hunt.

Wednesday evening the Senior Counselors held seminars. Then came the Talent Contest, where all of the delegates demonstrated their talented abilities.

Thursday evening the delegates attended a banquet. Student Council President gave the welcome and introduction of the guests.

As the week continued, the delegates found many new acquaintances. The enthusiasm at the closing session clearly showed that the delegates were ready to return to their schools and make their student councils more efficient.

As Friday came, no one wanted to go home. They knew it would be a while if ever, when they would see each other again. The IASC Executive Board and Workshop Staffs wish all of these delegates and their councils a successful year.

SOME EARLY IDEAS FOR CONVENTION

Amy Barry
IASC 2nd Vice President

At this point in the school year, May seems like a long way off, however, to make the IASC a meaningful organization we need people to participate in the activities and become involved.

A super way to do this is to display a successful activity, project, or fund raising method your council has been involved with during the school year. Your display would be in the IASC Hall of Ideas at the State Convention. It is your convention and you will benefit by participating; as well as having others benefit from your successful idea. For some of you that have participated in many activities, this would be a good chance for you to share them with others. This is an in-quita position because little work is involved and it is a sharing experience. In essence, the Hall of Ideas is the home school sharing an idea with all other IASC members. The IASC would like to invite your council to display an entry in the 1979 "Hall of Ideas" at the State Convention. The entry may be a poster, a slide presentation, a handout with a description, plus a how to precription, et.al.

For those who are interested in doing a more detailed and involved project and helping the IASC while becoming an out-of quota delegate, consider becoming a project school chairman. A duty of the project chairman is to gather, assimilate, process, and publish materials and ideas on that topic to be beneficial to all IASC schools. Topics may be chosen by an individual school or come from a suggested list that the Board has recommended. All expenses are the responsibility of the project school.

If you are interested in becoming involved with either one of these activities, please contact Amy Barry, Grayslake High School Grayslake, IL. 60030

IASC SPOTLIGHTS

The IASC Executive Board is privileged this year to have an outstanding young man as its First Vice President, Nick Hyslop.

Nick is a senior at Rantoul High School. This is his second year as Student Council President at Rantoul. He has been in student Council for five years and was Kickapoo's district treasurer last year. He is in the National Honor Society and is a broadcaster for Rantoul High Radio Show. He was involved in cross country, basketball, and baseball. Nick works at Gery and Al's Sporting Good Store.

Nick likes people who are friendly, happy, sincere, active, responsible, have high ambitions, and a sense of humor.

After attending several IASC Workshops and finding out what a fine organization the IASC is Nick decided to run for office. He was also encouraged to run for office by Andy Hamilton, Past Vice-President of Kickapoo District.

Nick's goal as First Vice President this year is to get more high schools in Illinois participating in IASC functions and to show students that getting involved in IASC will not only be a lot of fun, but also improve individuals and their own student councils.

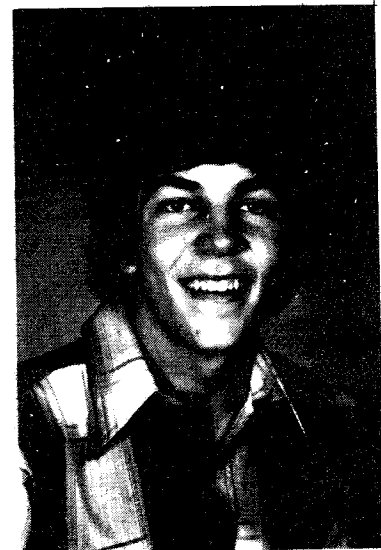

The problem Nick faces as First Vice President is that many students do not look to the student council to improve conditions in the High School. He feels that student councils must show their student bodies that they are able to take a stand on issues in the school and improve conditions for the student body. Nick also feels that student councils today must act primarily as a bridge between the student body and the faculty-administration. He feels that councils need to find out what students want in the high school and then take necessary steps for improvement.

Nick would like to remind councils that their job not only includes providing social functions for students such as dances, but also includes sponsoring community and school service projects and actively participating in issues that concern the students in their high school.

Nick suggests that if anyone is planning to run for a state office, he/she should attend as many state functions as possible. By attending state activities one will have a chance to see what responsibilities a state officer has. If any one would like to run for an office or is thinking about it, Nick would be very happy to discuss with him/her what a state officer does and what sacrifices are necessary to be an effective state officer.

Nick plans to enroll at the University of Illinois and major in pre-law.

On behalf of the IASC, the very best of luck to Nick in all future endeavors.

Nick Hyslop

The IASC Executive Board is fortunate this year to have the privilege of working with Sean Freeman, its newly elected treasurer.

Sean is a senior at St. Joseph-Ogden High School in St. Joseph, IL, a town, near Champaign-Urbana, of about 2,000 people.

Sean has been involved in student council since his freshman year, and he says student council has opened up a whole new world to him. He began attending workshops and the state convention, and found out how much the IASC has to offer, and how important it is to have an active council in one's school.

Sean is active in sports and other school activities. He is the co-captain of the football team and he plays fullback and linebacker. Sean plays forward on the basketball team and catches on the baseball team. He is also in National Honor Society and Student Council. Sean is active, but he still finds time to do an outstanding job for the IASC.

Sean loves people, and likes to do what he can to help them. He commented, "The IASC is an organization of the Students, by the Students, and for the Students. Sure it sounds pretty corny, but it's something that we all remember."

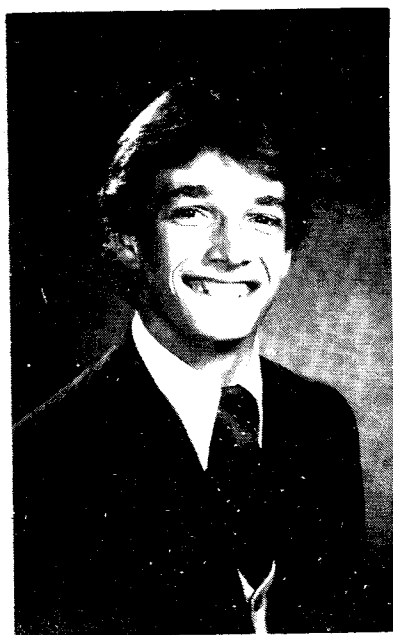

Sean's major goals for the IASC are as follows:

1. Increase IASC membership and participation in IASC activities 100%.
2. Run the office of treasurer as smoothly and as organized as possible.
3. Keep in close contact with all districts in the state, hopefully helping to close the gap between the State Board and the Districts.
4. Last and certainly not least, add anything he can to improve the Illinois Association of the Student Councils, and keep the IASC moving forward!!

Sean has one piece of advice that he would like to pass on: "Take the opportunities that are offered to you, such as student council, seize them and take advantage of them. Student council and the IASC are there for you."

Sean wants to attend either the U.S. Naval Academy or the U.S. Coast Guard Academy. He hopes to major in oceanography.

On behalf of the Executive Board, the best of luck to Sean this year and success in achieving his goals.

Sean Freeman

" FEELINGS "

About Summer Workshop

The greatest experience I had this summer was going to McKendree College in Lebanon, Ill. for a student leadership workshop. The main purpose in attending this workshop was to gain skills in leadership and communication with other people. The whole week that I was down there I learned more than I probably would have in a whole school year. The people that I met were from all over the state of Illinois. It was a great experience as well as educational, talking with kids that went to schools of 300 students while others came from schools of over 4,000 students. The counselors and junior counselors made the workshop the success that it was, they really kept the kids busy with worthwhile activities so that no one had the chance to be bored. Mr. Phelps ( E.G. H.S. Student Council Advisor ) was the main speaker at the general sessions and was liked by everyone. He talked about the importance of good communication because without it a student council can not possibly function with success. By the end of the week I had made so many new friends and was having such a good time that I didn't want to leave, but as the saying goes " All good things must come to an end " and by Friday afternoon the 27th Annual Student Leadership Workshop was history to be remembered. The train ride home was long and sad, the people that no one knew going down there seemed like life-time friends by Friday. As the train came closer and closer to Union Station People started crying and embracing each other, it was one of the most beautiful sights that I had ever seen. McKendree College and the people that I met there will be a part of me for the rest of my life. It was an experience I'll never forget.

District - State Liaison - The Winged Mercury of the IASC

At the 1976 IASC State Convention, a new student position was formed in order to create better communications between the executive Board and the numerous districts of the IASC. The position was called the district-state liaison.

The main duty of the liaison is to inform the state board of the events in his/her respective district. The liaison reports to the Executive Board either by an oral report at a board meeting or by mail. Either way, the board members are better informed on district happenings.

The liaison serves a one year term which lasts from the time he is appointed at the state convention until the following year. During this time, the liaison is invited to one Executive Board meeting, but only as an ex-officio member.

This position has been hard work but very rewarding to me. In my opinion, the liaison position should be kept in the IASC organization.
