The Leaders of Tomorrow

This year there were two Fresh-Soph workshops. The first was held at East Bay Camp, Bloomington, on November 10th and 11th. The second workshop was held at Rockford College in Rockford. The reason for the two locations was to cut down on the traveling. Students from the southern part of the state attended East Bay, while students from the northern part of the state attended the workshop at Rockford. The format of both workshops was the same.

The delegates started to arrive at 11:00 a.m. for registration; at 12:30 p.m. lunch was served.

At the first general session Mr. Gary "Zoom" ZumMallen, workshop director, welcomed everyone. He then introduced Ed Phelps, Executive Secretary of the IASC. Mr. Phelps spoke briefly on leadership and the upcoming activities.

The delegates were then asked to form a circle and were given the name of an animal. The delegates with the same animal formed a group for the entire weekend.

Each group did icebreakers and thought of a school name, mascot and colors. Some groups even made up cheers. The groups reported back with someone from each group explaining the name, mascot, and colors they had chosen.

Delegates took a recreation break. Since the weather was superb, Rockford delegates went outside to play touch football and frisbee.

After recreation, delegates went to their council meetings to elect officers and discuss the Constitution and the Areas of Authority. The delegates then had dinner.

At the 2nd general session, Mr. Phelps talked about leadership theory and the development of leadership qualities. Afterwards, the delegates held council meetings. In these meetings, they discussed the committee system and project planning. When the meetings were over, delegates watched the movie "Jaws".

Sunday morning, after breakfast, delegates attended their final council meeting. They talked about calendar development and used "brainstorming" techniques to think of fund raising activities.

The last general session began with Rod Schlottman, NCD President, leading delegates in singing "Boom Chicka Boom" and other songs made famous by the IASC. He was followed by IASC President Steve Sakach, who talked about IASC activities. The other state officers, Jeri Henderson, 1st Vice-President; Janet Goodwin, 2nd Vice-President; Jeff Hawkins, Secretary; and Alan Edstrom, Convention Secretary, also talked about their positions and what a person can do to become an active part of the IASC state convention. Mr. Lou Nettlehorst, Wheeling High School, talked about the Illinois Citizenship Experience, co-sponsored by District #214 and the IASC. President Sakach concluded the general session by talking about the National Association of Student Councils conference trip to Colorado this coming summer.

The freshmen and sophomores who attended the workshops have learned the basics of leadership and are now ready to use that knowledge in their own councils.

Mr. Edmund Phelps
Executive Secretary
Illinois Association of Student Councils
Elk Grove High School
500 Elk Grove Blvd.
Elk Grove, IL 60007

Dear Mr. Phelps:

I would like to express my many thanks to you and the ISAC for giving me the opportunity to attend the 1979 NASC/NASAA Conference in Winter Park, Florida this summer. As preparation in my council for the new year has already begun, I can look back on my experiences at Nationals and on what I learned. I find myself giving more suggestions and making more decisions than ever before. As an officer in my council this year, I can already see how much my trip to Nationals has helped me. I came back to Waukegan happy and extremely proud to be a Student Council member. Winning the trip to Nationals was a fantastic experience. Thank You!

Please except my apologies at the late arrival of this letter.

Sincerely Yours,

Lisa Green

McKendree Goes National

Karen Klemchen

Ninety-six Student Council and National Honor Society members from the United States, Canada, and Puerto Rico, attended the National Leadership Training Center. The national workshop was held at McKendree College in Lebanon, Illinois, for the first time.

The staff, who were also from various parts of the country, arrived on Friday night and Saturday morning. Since the national workshop was run like the state workshop, staff meetings were spent orienting the new people to the program.

The delegates arrived on Sunday afternoon. After registering and unpacking, delegates waited for dinner to be served. Sunday night was spent interviewing roommates, telling others about themselves in small groups, getting into clubs and having club pictures taken. At the general session, delegates were greeted by a representative from the college, and by co-directors Pat Brown and Gary ZumMallen, staff was then introduced. Mr. Ed Phelps, consultant for the workshop, gave a rundown on the things to happen. The delegates then went to club meetings to play the name game. Clubs were given a problem and they had to think of a solution. They were then given a set of Tinker Toys to build their solution. The clubs brought their solution back to the general session and explained it to everyone. After the general session there were dorm meetings and closing led by the J.C.'s.

At Monday's general sessions, Mr. Phelps' talked about group participation and group reactions, delegates were then broken up into groups of ten to play mipples and wars, slips, and headbands to reinforce what Mr. Phelps had talked about. Delegates, after a short break, went to club meetings where they elected officers and talked about general sessions. Club members had the chance to join committees which interested them.

A new dimension was added; each Senior Counselor led a general session. The sessions dealt with structural information, communications, decision making, leadership, and self-worth.

Delegates also spent a day at Six Flags over Mid-America, in St. Louis. Terry Giroux, Director of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, joined the staff and delegates for a day to remember. He was also the guest speaker at the banquet on Thursday night.

Delegates also participated in a talent show, all-school sports night, with a disco following the banquet.

Delegates left on Friday morning having acquired new friends, new ideas and renewed enthusiasm to help their schools. They also learned about their leadership style, how to run a meeting, areas of authority and the constitution.

A New SC Member Views Workshops

The day of Kaneland's first student council meeting I was frightened and excited. I was excited because student council was a good, fun way of getting involved in high school. I was afraid because I wasn't acquainted with some of the other members and also I wasn't familiar with the procedures of the meetings. I kept quiet because I thought I would say the wrong thing. I took everything in and I observed what was going on.

As we had more meetings I became more familiar with the procedure of the meetings and I became more acquainted with the other members and our advisor. I started to feel at home.

Then someone mentioned the NCD New Member Workshop. I wanted to go but I wasn't sure why. After I attended the New Member Workshop I knew I would want to attend the IASC Frosh-Soph Workshop, but now I knew why. I learned so much about council--its purposes and its goals. I learned that through council I could develop my leadership skills and practice becoming more responsible. I learned that I could learn and yet have a good time and fun at the same time.

I recommend the district new member workshops and the IASC Frosh-Soph workshops to all new council members and I also recommend them to advisors. For advisors it's an easy way to train your council members and for you new council members — it's a way to feel like you really belong.

We've Only Just Begun. . .

We've only just begun . . . to lead was an appropriate theme for the first annual convention of the South Suburban District. The convention was held on November 10, 1979, with Thornridge High School serving as host.

After the delegates registered and received their folders, they went into the school's theatre where the convention got under way. Clarice Parsons, President of the South Suburban District, began the first general session by welcoming everyone to the convention. Rev. Doctor Robert Stickney gave the invocation. Mr. Richard Keller of Thornridge welcomed the delegates and encouraged them to be an active part in student council. Then, Mr. William Augustus, Superintendent of District 205 welcomed the delegates. Marti Stickney, Convention Secretary, introduced the guests: Steve Sakach, IASC President, and Nancy Klemchen, IASC Reporter-Editor. To add some entertainment to the convention the Thornridge High School Jazz Band played. Afterwards, the first general session of the SSD was adjourned.

Delegates then attended two discussion groups, broken up into half-hour sessions each. At this time each school also sent one delegate to the Business Meeting. Advisors and Credentials Committee meetings were also held.

The second general session began with SSD President, Clarice Parsons, presiding. Nominations and candidates speeches followed.

After lunch there was time to meet the candidates. The schools held caucuses and voted.

The third general session began with Marti Stickney presiding. Congressman Marty Russo was the keynote speaker. The theme of his speech was "Hopes for the Youth of Today." He talked about the potential of youths today and what they can do to shape the future.

The fourth general session was basically the installment of the new officers with Clarice Parsons presiding and the adjournment. From today's activities it is clear that the SSD has "just begun to lead."

The North Central District

The North Central District of the Illinois Association of Student Councils opened its years activities with a New Members/Advisor Workshop. The workshop, held at Cary Grove High School on October 10, was organized to train "new members and advisors" in (Con't. on page 7)

Eastern District

The 1979 convention of the EIADSC was held on Thursday, November 15 at Eastern Illinois University. Neoga High School served as host.

The theme of the convention was "Moving Ahead: Future Unlimited." In keeping with this theme, keynote speaker Jim Benedict talked about tackling tomorrow's problems and what we, as young adults, can do to help the future of America.

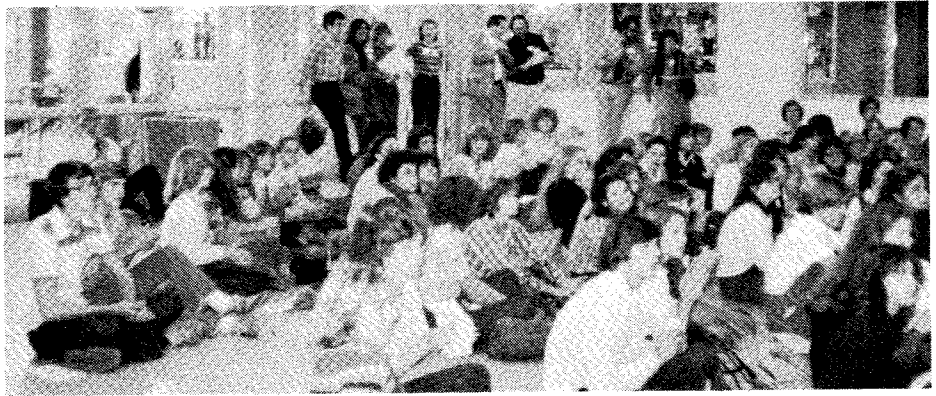

The day's activities began with Scott Kruger, EIADSC calling the First General Session to order. The principal of Neoga High School welcomed the delegates and explained how hard the Neoga Student Council had worked to make the convention the best ever. Jeff Hawkins, IASC Secretary, talked about the Eastern District's involvement on the state level and at upcoming IASC activities. The candidates then gave their speeches. The First General Session was adjourned.

The delegates went to discussion groups, while advisor and business meetings were also being held. After all business was taken care of, everyone sat themselves down to a big banquet. The Second General Session was then called to order at 6:30 p.m. Scott Krueger then gave his presidential address. After the installation of new officers, Darin Williams, 1979 - 80 EIADSC President adjourned the convention.

Kaskaskia District

Southern Illinois University was the setting for the 15th Annual Kaskaskia District Convention. The theme of the convention, held on November 17, 1979, was "Today's Challenges, Tomorrow's Success". Registration began at 8:30 a.m.

Delegates at NED Workshops and Edwardsville High School acted as host.

President Randy Tate called the First General Session to order. Rev. S. Weisman gave the invocation. A welcome to the delegates was given by Mr. Neal Schmelzel and Mr. Earl Lazerson. Kim Wilson, Convention Secretary, then introduced the guests. The reading of the minutes from last year's convention by Courtney Vales, KDSC Secretary, followed. Steve Sakach, IASC President and Karen Welch, IASC Treasurer, both gave a report on the IASC. Nominations for officer candidates were then opened. After the nominations from the floor, the candidates were introduced followed by their campaign speeches.

The first general session was adjourned. An advisor's meeting and two discussion groups were held. Lunch was then served.

The Second General Session was then called to order. The keynote speaker, Mr. Brad Whitehead, 1977-78 IASC President, talked about leadership and the special qualities that make a person a leader. Officer candidates were then voted on. The present KDSC officers each gave their own report. The Second General Session was adjourned.

The Third General Session was called to order by Tracy Winte, KDSC Vice-President. Randy Tate then gave his final president's address. The new 1980 officers were installed. The convention was then adjourned.

NED Starts the Year Off Right!

On September 20, 1979, Benet Academy held the first District Workshop of the school year. The theme of the workshop was Student Council: People to People. Registration began at 3:30 p.m. with 210 students receiving name tags and a program of the evening events. After everyone was registered, Father David lead the first General Session with a talk on communication. After the General Session, delegates eagerly waited in line for dinner to be served.

Next, students from various schools in NED lead seminars. Topics ranged from "Goal Setting and Evaluation" to "Communication - The Non-Verbal Agenda." After the seminars, delegates, got together for one last time in the evening. Everyone left the workshop with a good feeling of accomplishment.

The Trials and Tribulations of Closing a High School

Niles Township, District 219, including three divisions, East, North, and West, is unique. In September of 1980, Niles East will be the first high school in our area to be closed because of declining enrollment. It is predicted that many other high schools will also be closing in the near future.

Many questions arose in the preparation of the closing: 1) To which school, North/West, will the East students, teachers, and administrators be assigned? 2) Will the East students be assigned a new counselor, and will they compete against different students in class rank? 3) How will student activities be handled?

"Closing committees" consisting of administrators, teachers, parents, and students were formed to solve these transitional problems. Believe it or not, the biggest problem was student council, and is yet to be solved. What happens to a student who has worked hard in council for three years and would have been president of his school during his senior year, and suddenly his school is closed? All three schools in the district had different ideas for the transition of the East president. Niles West's idea was that the East president serve the second semester, and the West president serve first semester (that is, if the East president attends West). The Niles North council favored the East student acting as the North vice-president, and after six weeks, running against the North president in an in-council election. Lastly, the East council wanted co-presidents; to whichever school, West/North, the East student attended, he would act jointly with the other president.

Each plan had its pros and cons. A major obstacle we found was trying to explain to the parents and School Board that student council is different in every school. The students were against achieving commonality between the North and West councils. The two councils differ greatly, in everything from their names (Niles West Student Representative Assembly and Niles North Student Congress) to the method in which students became members (petition at West, election at North). The constitutions, by-laws, and the entire structure of the councils share few similarities.

How the Niles Township student councils will be run in 1980 is still up in the air. The presidency is only one problem of the entire assimilation of the East students into the North and West councils:

1) Who will serve as other officers and positions such as PTSA and School Board rep? and 2) Who will act as chairmen of various standing committees? are other unanswered questions.

If anyone has any ideas for solving some of our problems faced by our district concerning the transition of the student councils, PLEASE contact me. And if any other district is faced with the problem of declining enrollment/school closings, our student council is ready to help!

Get Involved

Are you an active member
The kind that would be missed,

Or are you just contented
That your name is on the list.

Do you attend the meetings
And mingle with the crowd,

Or do you often stay at home
And crab both long and loud?

Do you take an active part
To help the group along?

Or are you satisfied to be
The kind to "just belong"?

Do you ever go to visit
A member who is sick?

Or leave the work for just a few
And talk about the clique?

There is quite a program scheduled
That means success if done,

And it can be accomplished
With the help of everyone.

So attend the meetings regularly
And help with hand and heart,

Don't be just a member
But take an active part.

Think this one over, Member,
Are we right or are we wrong?

Are you an active member?
Or - Do You Just Belong?

I have often thought of this poem. It points out to us that if we sit back, without reaching out for opportunities, the world may slip right through our fingers. It is easy to fall into the trap of "just belonging"; but where do you go from there?

Participating in the activities of the IASC may be a step in the right direction toward becoming an active member. I have two fantastic opportunities that are a sure cure for the "just-belonging" syndrome. The first of these is applying for a Project School chairperson for the 1980 State Convention. A Project School is in charge of gathering and compiling information on a specific topic and then distributing your findings at the Convention.

This is designed to improve student leadership, develop and maintain an effective student government, and to perform a special service for the IASC.

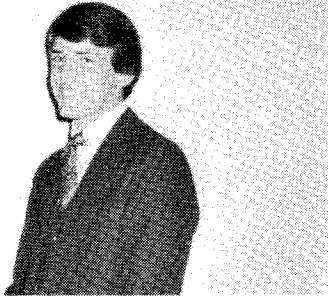

The second option for involvement is applying as a chairperson for the Hall of Ideas. This is also an area at State Convention with the aim of ideas being shared back and forth between districts, schools, and individuals. Maybe you can think of a successful project you would like to share with others from throughout the state. This is an excellent opportunity to do just that!

Give it some thought. If you wish to initiate a goal such as this, fill out one of the below applications; or I encourage you to write or call me at anytime for more specific details.

*Janet Goodwin
2nd Vice-President*

IASC Spotlight

Jeff Hawkins, Secretary of the IASC.

Keeping active and involved, for Jeff Hawkins, Secretary of the IASC, is what life is all about. Jeff is a senior at Monticello High School and has been active in student council since his freshman year. Besides student council, Jeff is involved with yearbook, sports and music. He is presently the drum leader and field major of the band. Not only is he an accomplished musician, but an athlete as well. He has been on the baseball team and cross country for three years, and on the basketball team for four years. He also plays tennis.

Jeff enjoys "getting back to nature." He likes activities such as hiking, camping, wilderness survival and high adventure trips. One of Jeff's favorite things to do is to watch the sun set in the mountains.

Jeff's advice to all student council members is "always be willing to gather new ideas and information, then once learned, never be afraid to step out and be a leader while putting your ideas to use." Student council is important to Jeff because "it offers not only a chance to help others, but an outstanding chance to develop one's own ideas."

In the fall, after graduation, Jeff plans to continue his education at college, and possibly work with the government.

Jeff's favorite quote is this: "Destiny is not a matter of chance, but rather, a matter of choice." With this in mind, the road ahead of Jeff looks promising.

On behalf of the IASC Executive Board, the very best of luck to Jeff in all his future endeavors.

My Plan for a Better Tomorrow

Being a student leader and attending many leadership workshops in the state and two national workshops, and seeing and talking with many different people from all over the nation, I believe there is nothing we cannot do. Now, more than ever I believe in "showing the way." I believe in reaching for the stars, and I am ready to accept the challenge of being one of the most powerful student leaders in the nation.

We must all understand that life is what we make it. It can be boring, exciting, or rewarding. From my experiences I've found that a leader cannot function without followers. I am not asking you to follow behind me, but to walk with me side by side: BE A LEADER!

Many youths of today just don't know how fortunate they are and what power they have. When you are willing to stand up and say, "I AM A LEADER!" then this is where it all begins.

IASC Convention A La Mode

This year's IASC State convention entitled "Food for Thought" which will be held on May 8, 9, 10, 1980, promises to be fun—filled, exciting and a great learning experience.

Along with discussion groups, Hall of Ideas, elections, and Conference on Student Views, there will be something called TAAFEA. This stands for Thursday Afternoon Activities For Early Arrivals, and consists of tours of the Field Museum, the Museum of Science and Industry, the Shedd Aquarium, the Art Institute, John Hancock Building, and Water Tower Place. As if that's not enough, there will be a banquet complete with strolling violinists, and singers.

Wait folks, there's more! With the dance wrapping up the whole convention, there will also be full-length movies to see while you rest from boogieing away.

If you are a student leader who wants to learn more about the IASC and leadership, and have fun doing it, maybe you will be able to digest "Food for Thought".

Student Council.

The workshop began at 2:30 p.m. with an opening session featuring Ed Phelps, executive secretary of the IASC. After Mr. Phelps' usual dynamic presentation of the four leadership areas: structure, communication, group and self, the 100 student delegates adjourned to discussion groups expanding on all four divisions of Phelps' speech. The 15 advisors attended a session hosted by Burt Showers on how advisors can improve their councils.

The success of the workshop was owed to the experience of the discussion group leaders, Janet Goodwin, IASC 2nd Vice-President, Jeri Henderson, IASC 1st Vice-President, and Chip Walgren of Guilford High School.

Dinner and a dance concluded the days activities.
